“ Sorry for your loss. I remember long ago, Clayborn and a lot of us was out cutting firewood. He came up to me and showed me how to sharpen my chainsaw chain. The problem with that was I no longer had an excuse for not cutting more firewood.

He will remain in many peoples memories as he is in mine. God bless the family and may all memories be joyful ones.

“ Sorry for your lose. I remember a long time ago Clayborn taught me how to sharpen a chainsaw chain. The thing is, that meant I had no excuse to cut more fire wood. He will be missed. He touched thousands of people in his life time. I pray for comfort for family and friends.

God Bless

“ My mother Helen Dowland Keele, worked for Montgomery Ward in Carlinville for 17 years, she always said the Wallis family were her favorite customers. She said she would have sold them the Brooklyn Bridge on credit & knew they would pay for it. Our family sends our condolence.
